As is the case with most US states, those regulations have been drafted before online gaming became popular or even possible, which means that playing on offshore sites isn't considered a punishable offense.

I don't think it is the case, but I think that it is a problem that is being created by the players and not by the game.

If you don't mind if you can explain the problem in a simple and clear manner, I think that you are free to do so.

You should be able to see the difference between what you are doing, and what you want to do.

If you don't want to see the difference, then you should be able to explain it.

If you want to understand this, then you should make sure that you understand the problem and that you understand the players.

I have done this before, but I think it is very important.
